School janitor nabbed in big child-porn bust

Operation Mainmise. Investigation 'far from over,' say cops

JOE LOFARO

joe.lofaro@metronews.ca

A custodian at an Ottawa elementary school is among a group of 28 people arrested Wednesday in a large child-pornography bust carried out by Quebec provincial police.

Sûreté du Québec spokesperson Marc Tessier said Luc Lacasse, 49, was charged with one count of distributing child pornography and one count of accessing child pornography. He was conditionally released from custody Wednesday.

Roxanne Deevey, a spokesperson for the Eastern Ontario French Catholic school board, told Metro Lacasse has been working at the École élémentaire catholique Montfort in Ottawa's east end since 2012.

She said the board hired him in 1986.

Police arrested Lacasse at 7 a.m. before classes started without warning the school beforehand.

"In the larger community as a whole this news comes as a shock," said Deevey.

The SQ's Operation Mainmise lasted from June to October of this year and so far one victim — a five-year-old boy — has been identified. Police suspect there could be more.

Deevey said the board is relieved that police said they have no reason to believe any of the students at the school are believed to be involved in Lacasse's alleged criminal activity.

Letters were handed out Thursday afternoon to parents notifying them of his arrest, Deevey said. Meanwhile, the school is conducting an internal investigation to decide how to proceed with the custodian's employment.

After he was granted bail Wednesday, the court issued a restraining order banning him from entering school property.

Squash player 'lived and breathed to play': Friend

Adrian Dudzicki, 23, seen here in a Facebook photo, was fatally hit by a car Wednesday while riding his bike. FACEBOOK

Dead at 23. Ottawa athlete killed in Toronto crash remembered as police charge driver

joe.lofaro@metronews.ca

Friends and athletes in the professional squash community are shaken by the loss of one of the sport's rising stars from Ottawa, Adrian Dudzicki, who was killed Wednesday after being hit by a car in Toronto while riding his bike.

Dudzicki, 23, a University of Ottawa graduate, moved to Toronto to hone his skills at the thing he loved most.

"He lived and breathed to play," said Gary Waite, owner of the National Squash Academy, where Dudzicki practiced.

Const. Clint Stibbe told Metro Thursday that the driver of the car, Aleksey Aleksev, 20, was charged with dangerous driving causing death and criminal negligence causing death. Police said speed might have been a factor in the collision.

Waite stumbled upon the crash scene on Wednesday. First he saw the signature rackets on the road, then Dudzicki's scarf.

"Yeah, that was rough. I don't want to go through that again," he said.

What he likes to remember is how this young, hard-working, mature young man stood out from the crowd.

"He worked like a maniac," said Waite. "I'd come in here at eight in the morning and he'd already done three hours and everyone thought he was crazy and overdoing it."

But all those hours paid off last year with Dudzicki coming out on top in the 2012 Ontario Closed Squash Championship.

"He really had a strong will and a unique work ethic. And you don't find that a lot in young kids these days," said Waite.

Sam Cornett, 22, knew Dudzicki at age 12 when they lived in Ottawa together. His family still lives in Ottawa.

Surrounded by other players who knew him, she held back tears Thursday as she spoke highly of him on the phone.

"I guess the thing that would stick out the most is how hard he worked to try and achieve his goals," said Cornett. "He would be at the club before everyone and he wouldn't drive here, he would bike here, obviously. He just put in a lot more hours than everyone else and I think that he's a really good role model."

Tragic death

Funeral to be held Monday for Ottawa cop killed in crash

Funeral arrangements have been made for an off-duty Ottawa police officer who was killed Sunday in a two-vehicle collision in the city's south end.

Const. Michael Robillard, 32, leaves behind a wife and three-year-old son as family and police colleagues mourn his sudden death. He was pronounced dead at the scene of the collision on 8th Line Road south of Parkway Road shortly after 4 p.m.

A funeral service is scheduled for Monday at the Beechwood National Memorial Centre at 10 a.m. A visitation will also be held Sunday between 2 p.m. and 4 a.m. and 6 p.m. and 8 p.m.

Robillard was on his way to work when his Honda Civic collided with a minivan carrying a mother and her seven-year-old daughter.

They were transported to hospital to be treated for non-life-threatening injuries.

Police Chief Charles Bordeleau said flags at Ottawa police stations will remain at half mast until sundown on the day of Robillard's funeral.

City's Asian community faces string of break-ins: Cops

Investigation. Police say all the victims are of Asian descent and either own or work at different local Asian restaurants

joe.lofaro@metronews.ca

It appears gold bandits are after Ottawa's Asian community yet again after police said Thursday they're investigating nine daytime break-ins in the past month targeting homeowners of Asian descent.

Police say the first break-in was reported Oct. 22 and the most recent one was Nov. 16 where gold bars, jewelry, and cash were stolen. Seven of the break-ins happened in the Barrhaven area, while one was in Centretown and another in Chapel Hill.

The unique link between each incident is that all of the victims are of Asian descent and either work at or own local Asian restaurants, said Ottawa police Staff Sgt. Kal Ghadban. He said the suspects break into the rear of the homes, break into a safe, and take off with cash and jewelry worth "tens of thousands" of dollars.

"They obviously knew they weren't going to be home for a while," said Ghadban. "They were prepared. They knew there was going to be that property in there."

"Because they're being targeted people should consider the safety of a safety deposit box outside the home," he said, adding that neighbours should also be mindful of any suspicious activity near their neighbours' homes.

Police don't yet know if there is one suspect acting alone or if there are multiple culprits. Other items that have been taken include high-end handbags and gold coins, Ghadban said.

The details of these break-ins bear a striking similarity to a string of break-ins in 2011 when 21 homes in Barrhaven and Kanata were targeted.

Suspects in those cases between May and November 2011 were also after owners of high-quality gold, according to police.

At the time, those cases also raised alarm bells because of a similar break-in investigation in the GTA called Project Dish.

Toronto police said suspects would target homes with satellite dishes pointed to a satellite carrying South Asian programming.

Cyberbullying law would be a 'big step forward': Councillor

Protecting Canadians from Online Crime Act.

Coun. Allan Hubley, who lost his son to suicide, hopes legislation will help other kids avoid the same fate

trevor.greenway@metronews.ca

The father of a teenager who killed himself after years of torment says new legislation tabled Wednesday is a "big step forward" in the country's fight against cyberbullying.

Ottawa city councillor Allan Hubley says although cyberbullying laws will never bring back his son Jamie, who took his own life in 2011, it may save other kids from the same fate.

"I've lost him; I have to deal with that, that he is gone," said Hubley.

"Will this help other children avoid the fate that Jamie had and the terrible loss that my family will have to deal with for the rest of our lives? I (think it will)."

The Protecting Canadians from Online Crime Act will make it illegal for anyone to distribute sexually explicit images without that person's consent and will give cops new tools to probe Internet crimes that don't compromise privacy.

The new legislation is a bit troublesome for the country's civil liberties association.

Director of the fundamental freedoms program at the Canadian Civil Liberties Association, Cara Zwibel, said the act should have a "higher standard where it's clear that there is a malicious intent" involved when distributing the images.

"Today it's not that uncommon for young people to send their boyfriend or girlfriend sexy pictures of themselves," she told Metro a day after the bill was tabled.

"There are embarrassing images of public figures that may come out; there are harassing emails that people sometimes send to their city councilperson and all of that might be caught and some of that is expression."

Ottawa city councillor Allan Hubley poses with his son Jamie in this family photo released in 2011. A new national anti-bullying and anti-discrimination program will be unveiled on Monday at the late teen's former school.

Two scholarships in honour of an Ottawa teenager who killed himself after years of bullying have been created by the Youth Services Bureau to help fight mental illness.

pression. He was tormented by bullies beginning in middle school because he enjoyed figure skating.

On his blog before his death, he wrote about being bullied because he was the only openly gay student at his high school.

The scholarships are worth $2,000 each — one will go to a student entering the mental-health field and another will go to someone who has struggled with mental-health issues and is trying to better their life.

"It's to give them a helping hand," said Coun. Hubley.

"It's not that easy to get the help you need when your family is in crisis. We want to help people find the help they need."

The scholarships will be given out annually.

The news comes during Bullying Prevention Week and ahead of what would have been Jamie's 18th birthday on Nov. 23.

Medical-marijuana users feel outed by Health Canada

'I'm outright panicked.' Mass mailing identifying recipients as pot smokers has some patients freaking out

ottawa@metronews.ca

Tens of thousands of medical-marijuana patients across the country are receiving a mass mailing from Health Canada exposing them as medical-cannabis users and many are now in panic mode.

The letter, which Health

Canada says was sent to 40,000 people, comes in a white envelope and has a return address with the words "Medical Marihuana Access Program" written across the top, followed by the patient's name and address. Many people say their privacy has been violated and fear their houses may be robbed and their home-growing gardens targeted.

"I'm outright panicked," said multiple-sclerosis patient Suzi Berardini, who also suffers from trigeminal neuralgia. She said the mailman who dropped the letter off "smirked" when he handed her the envelope. "It's terrifying. So many levels of terrifying."

Laurie MacEachern, who represents medical-marijuana patients as director of the Medicinal Cannabis Patients' Alliance of Canada Inc., said she's "supremely" concerned about the information being released to the public.

"One patient said she got her mail and the delivery man said, 'I didn't know you smoked,'" said MacEachern.

MacEachern said previous letters did not have the word "marijuana" on it.

Almost a dozen other medical-marijuana patients called Metro with similar concerns. Most weren't willing to comment on the record for fear of being exposed even more.

Health Canada deputy minister George Da Pont said the format of the mailing was the result of an "administrative error." He said the letters outlining changes to the Marihuana Medical Access Program, which take effect next spring, were sent to 40,000 patients.

"This is not standard Health Canada practice," he wrote in an email to Metro.

"On behalf of Health Canada, I deeply regret this administrative error. Health Canada is taking steps to ensure this does not happen again. Protection of personal information is of fundamental importance to Health Canada. We are in discussion with the Office of the Privacy Commissioner of Canada."

Among the reasons for changes to the rules, which will prohibit patients from growing their own marijuana at home, cited in the letter is concern that participants in the program will be targets of home invasions.

A spokesperson with the office of the Information and Privacy Commissioner Heather Ormerod said in an email:

"Our Office was not notified by Health Canada of this incident. We were made aware of it by a number of concerned individuals who contacted our Office. We have since received complaints and we will be investigating this matter," Ormerod wrote. "We have been in touch with Health Canada and are currently gathering further information."

'I'm unsafe now'

Why people say they're upset...

Suzi Berardini says she no longer feels safe in her Ottawa home after a letter from Health Canada exposed her as a medical-marijuana patient.

"Any Joe Blow who works at Canada Post now might know where I am and that I'm a patient and can easily think, 'Well, if she's a legal patient, she must have meds,'" she told Metro after receiving a letter.

"I feel like I have a giant bull's-eye on my roof."

Rick Gauthier is now considering moving from his small town in Venice, Que., as he says everybody likely knows he's a medical-marijuana user after receiving his letter in the mail Thursday.

"I think I'm unsafe now."

He worries Canada Post workers may even steal his medicine.

Michael Greenblatt's letter went through several hands before it was delivered to his room at a nursing home in Markham.

When the letter finally reached his room, he said, the delivery person said, "I would sure like to be in this program."

"First of all, it's my private medical issue," Greenblatt said.

"It's not up to Health Canada."

He has filed a complaint with Canada's privacy commission.

Fun and games are serious business

Orlando. Bounce houses, giant animatronic bugs, zip lines and roller coaster wheels all on offer at trade show

Have you ever wondered where your fun comes from?

The answer: here, at the International Association of Amusement Parks & Attractions expo.

The five-day trade show took place this week in Orlando, smack in the middle of the world's biggest theme-park corridor. It's the largest such convention in the world, and people from more than 100 countries either attend or exhibit at the mind-bogglingly massive show.

If one were to walk the entire show floor, it would tally 15 kilometres.

Here, leisure is serious business. There's everything that a theme park, entertainment centre, zoo or museum could want at this show.

Montreal-based company Triotech had one of the largest spaces at the expo. They are developing an interactive, dark roller coaster for Cedar Fair Entertainment Company's Toronto park.

"We met them on the floor a couple of years ago," said Matt Ouimet, CEO of Cedar Fair. Triotech's coaster is scheduled to open at Canada's Wonderland in May 2014. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Pennsylvania

3,2,1 ... giant mushroom!

A town near Philadelphia that's famous for fungus will ring in 2014 with a giant mushroom.

The 318-kilogram, stainless-steel toadstool will be lowered from a crane Dec. 31 as residents of Kennett Square count down to the New Year.

The Philadelphia Inquirer reports the sculpture will be more than two metres wide and 2.5 metres tall.

Kennett Square calls itself the mushroom capital of the world because area farms account for about half of U.S. mushroom production.

The mushroom joins a slew of quirky New Year's Eve traditions in Pennsylvania.

In Bethlehem, residents celebrate Jan. 1 by lowering an 38-kg statue of a Marshmallow Peep, since the treats are made locally.

In Easton, officials drop a three-metre-tall lighted crayon because the city is home to Crayola Inc.

Crowdfunding. Young entrepreneur's smart watch raises over $200K

A 19-year-old entrepreneur from Montreal is taking on tech juggernauts Samsung and Sony by trying to launch his own smart watch.

Like many startup companies, Neptune Computer Inc. has turned to an online crowdfunding platform to raise funding for a full launch of its product.

Simon Tian's vision for a better smart watch quickly won over the community at Kickstarter. Tian hit his target of $100,000 in just over 24 hours and passed $200,000 Thursday afternoon with 30 more days to raise additional funds.

He had the idea for his smart watch, called the Neptune Pine, last year and visited factories in China to investigate what he could have built.

The first thing that stands out about the Neptune Pine is its 2.4-inch screen, which he admits looks large on a wrist.

"Obviously the initial reaction will be 'Oh, it's big for a watch!' but we think a paradigm shift is going to be required in the future," said Tian.

Political theatre

Ford's future up to T.O. voters, but he shouldn't get my job, says Harper

Prime Minister Stephen Harper is speaking out for the first time on Toronto Mayor Rob Ford — and keeping his tongue planted firmly in his cheek.

Harper jokes that he's heard Ford say publicly he wants to be prime minister, a notion Harper says he clearly can't support.

But when it comes to the Toronto mayor's future, Harper says that's for the voters of that city to decide.

"I've heard Mr. Ford's statements to the effect that he would like to become prime minister of Canada; obviously this is not something I'm in favour of," Harper said.

Harper says the Conservative government's position is clear: There are strict drugs laws in place, and no one should be buying or using illegal drugs, especially politicians.

Senators rattled by tale of PMO meddling

Rattled Conservative and Liberal senators say they're trying to come to terms with the RCMP's description of meddling by the Prime Minister's Office in the upper chamber's business.

The 80-page court filing by the Mounties became required reading around the Senate this week. Emails back and forth suggest Stephen Harper's staff and his top senators helped to manipulate a Senate committee and its report into former colleague Mike Duffy's contested living expenses. The group also tried to quash an independent audit commissioned by the Senate.

"I am a strong believer in the independence of the institution and I think it's something we're all going to have to reflect upon in terms of going forward and how that relationship (with elected officials) should be structured," Conservative Sen. Bob Runciman said Thursday.

Liberal senators are also reading the documents with interest, and considering if anything should be done on the floor of the Senate.

"I've read the documents. I find parts of them very disturbing indeed, but beyond that I don't really want to comment," said deputy Liberal Senate leader Joan Fraser.

"It's going to take a little while to work through all of this and figure out what the ultimate implications are."

Harper, who was in Lac-Mégantic, Que., on Thursday, said, "I've said many times that I told Mr. Duffy very clearly that I expected him to pay his own inappropriate expenses. That's what Mr. (Nigel) Wright said, that's what Mr. Duffy said publicly. When I learned the contrary in May, I took the necessary action."

In the Commons, Harper's parliamentary secretary Paul Calandra repeated the response that Harper was telling Wright in February he was "good to go" with Duffy repaying his expenses.

NDP Leader Thomas Mulcair mocked the response.

"In that case, there is really only one question: Since when does the prime minister of Canada have to approve a senator repaying his own expenses?"

Chris Montgomery

The Tory who stood his ground

In a scandal where even seasoned MPs and senators were persuaded to sing from the PMO songbook, a lone Conservative staff member stood his ground on ethics.

Chris Montgomery is the plucky Tory who said no when he was asked by some of the most powerful people in the country to help tinker with a Senate report on Sen. Mike Duffy's questionable housing expenses.

Montgomery, who has since joined the private sector, was the director of parliamentary affairs for former Conservative Senate Leader Marjory LeBreton for six years. His online LinkedIn profile says he was there to "exercise sound judgment in guaranteeing that agendas were advanced in accordance with minister's mandates."

But when the agenda of the PMO involved manipulating Senate committees, and shaping a Senate report, Montgomery balked.

"Chris simply does not believe in our goal of circling the wagons," Wright complained in an email about Montgomery.

"Because of this lack of buy in, it was impossible to discuss meaningfully the parliamentary strategy..."

Montgomery also told police that he ignored a request from Wright to keep tabs on Duffy. "He did not want to get involved in the audit process," RCMP Cpl. Greg Horton wrote in his court filing.

Eventually, a deal was struck with Duffy to have his expenses repaid. The Prime Minister's Office and key senators moved to strip a Senate report of paragraphs critical of Duffy. They held a meeting with Senate staff a day before the report was made public. Montgomery again said no.

3 women rescued after 30 years of forced servitude: U.K. police

Three women have been freed after spending 30 years held captive in a south London home, including one woman believed to have spent her entire life in domestic slavery, police announced Thursday.

London's Metropolitan Police spoke about the rescues after two people — a man and a woman, both 67 — were arrested early Thursday on suspicion of forced labour and domestic servitude.

The arrests came as part of a slavery investigation launched after one of the captives contacted a charity in October to say she was being held against her will along with two others. The charity went to the police, the force said.

Those freed on Oct. 25 are a 69-year-old Malaysian woman, a 57-year-old Irish woman and a 30-year-old British woman, police said.

Kevin Hyland, head of the Metropolitan Police's human trafficking unit, said the women are "highly traumatized" having had "no real exposure to the outside world" for the past 30 years.

"Trying to find out exactly what has happened over three decades will understandably take some time," he said.

Kevin Hyland, head of London's Metropolitan Police's human trafficking unit, speaks to the media outside New Scotland Yard's headquarters Thursday. London police say three women who were held for at least 30 years against their will in a London home had been rescued and announced the arrests of two people.

SKY TV/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Police at Scotland Yard initially said they did not believe any of the victims were related. Later, however, they appeared to backtrack, saying the relationship between the three women is part of the ongoing investigation and they will not speculate on it.

The revelations raised numerous questions — all still unanswered — about how the women's ordeal began and why it endured for so long. The women — whose names have not been released — are now safe at an undisclosed location in Britain and have been working with severe trauma experts since their rescue, Hyland said.

It is not known how the women ended up in the house — especially the 30-year-old, who would have had to either been born in the home or enter it as an infant, given the police timeline. She appears to have been held in domestic servitude for her entire life, Scotland Yard said.

on Friday, Nov. 22, 1963

The 50th anniversary of the assassination of President John F. Kennedy will be marked by solemn events in multiple U.S. cities on Friday.

In Dallas, where Kennedy was shot while riding through the city on Nov. 22, 1963, a ceremony will include brief remarks by the mayor and the tolling of church bells.

In Boston, the JFK Library and Museum will open an exhibit of never-before-displayed items from Kennedy's state funeral and host a musical tribute that will be closed to the public.

And in Washington, President Barack Obama will meet privately at the White House with leaders and volunteers from the Kennedy-established Peace Corps program.

About 5,000 tickets were issued for the ceremony in Dallas' Dealey Plaza, which is

Emergency Canadian Red Cross hospital now open in Philippines

A Canadian Red Cross emergency field hospital in the Philippines is open for business.

The facility is located in front of a damaged local hospital in the city of Ormoc, on the west coast of the island of Leyte.

The hospital was flooded by the typhoon and its roof was destroyed.

The Canadian facility is helping with surgery, medicine, maternal and child care and outpatient services.

Canadian Red Cross CEO Conrad Sauve says the hospital expects to handle 10 to 15 natural births and five or six Caesareans every day, as well as up to 300 outpatients.

"Our teams on the ground have been working around the clock to get the hospital going," said Sauve. "Now that this hospital is in place, we will be able to cover the health needs of a population of more than 100,000 people."

The facility opened as Canadian military aid efforts continue on the island of Panay, farther to the west.

Canadian Griffon helicopters have made their first forays to bring aid to isolated communities and outlying islands.

Two water purification units, each of which can produce up to 50,000 litres of drinking water every day, are in operation.

Three more of the units are expected to be in place in a few days.

About 300 Canadian personnel are operating from a base in the city of Roxas.

Privacy. LG smart TV collecting viewing habits without consent: Blogger

LG Electronics Inc. said it is investigating a claim that some of its smart TVs send information on home viewing habits back to the company without consent.

The investigation comes after Jason Huntley, a 45-year-old IT consultant in Britain, detailed in his blog how his LG smart TV logged the channels he was watching and sent the data to LG.

He said the company continued to collect which channel he was watching even after he disabled the information collection feature.

"The (LG) server acknowledges the successful receipt of this information back to the TV," he said in an email. The information appeared to be sent to LG unencrypted, he said.

Also collected were the names of files saved in an external USB hard drive plugged into the TV as well as the TV's unique identification informa-

When Huntley asked LG about the data collection last week, the company blamed a TV retailer for not disclosing the company's terms and conditions when he made the purchase.

The final product can be pieced together in 107 seconds, costs $99, and has generated enough excitement to crowd-fund almost triple the original target of $100,000 within 48 hours, with funders including Apple co-founder Steve Wozniak, a.k.a. the Woz.

The shift to temporary employment isn't just happening in Canada. The U.S. is witnessing the same trend.

- America added 913,200 temporary workers since the end of the recession in June 2009 (19 per cent of all new jobs), bringing the number to a total of 2.66 million in April. (U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics)
- Hiring for permanent full-time workers over the second half of 2013 will remain stagnant and will be consistent with the same period in 2012, according to CareerBuilder, LLC's Mid-year Job Forecast prediction.

Temp Recalls the Zombie Walk

I think the AmQex protest got so much press because the zombies that the cops handcuffed and dragged away left behind a wicked trail of slime and body parts.

Andy Kimura, the firm's third partner, was looking at YouTube over my shoulder and said, "I must say, Shannon, bodily remains really look great online." Andy was still woozy from jetlag after being quarantined for bird flu at Beijing Airport.

"Mr. Kimura, shouldn't you be showing the Chinese folks around while they measure stuff?"

"Not me. I'm Japanese."

"Genetically maybe."

"But my name certainly is, and the Chinese aren't so hot on Japan."

I said, "Hey, check this out — Sarah from marketing got 15 seconds with the Channel 3 Roving Reporter." To be honest, I've no idea what Sarah said. All I remember is her trademarked casual hair flip as she smiled while behind her lay a left leg covered in red corn syrup and vinyl black flies.

"Poor Sarah," said Andy. "Today's her last day."

Oh God. "Seriously?"

"That's life, Shannon. As we speak our new Chinese owners are measuring the staff lunchroom with a laser level. We are not a company that is in need of a head of marketing."

"Oh Sarah, I barely knew ye. Does she know it yet?"

"After lunch."

"Life sucks."

It was weird having every single surface of the building measured by quiet, methodical people speaking a mystery language. What made it especially odd was how they didn't really seem to notice or interact with the people in the building. It was like they were taking measurements inside a photograph, not a real building. Two guys in the meeting room were assembling a 3D model of the building using data brought in by the measurers.

I found myself missing Mr. Shoeman terribly. I decided to phone him in Beijing, and seeing country code 86 on my desktop phone put me in a better mood. I hoped he hadn't forgotten our plans for the future.

"Hello, Mr. Xu?"

"Hi, hello, yes, whatever — whoever this is, I'm getting a reflexology right now and need to focus my qi energy."

"Mr. Shoeman, it's me, Shannon."

"Ah. Sweetest lily of decadent western imperialism."

"Shoeman, I miss you. When are you coming back?"

"Me so sorry — not understand."

I giggled: "You're still such a dick."

"Hang in there, sweetheart."

"What about our secret plan?"

"Our secret plan goes into operation within a few days."

"You promise?"

"I promise." I hung up the phone and turned around to find Andy Kimura and the two remaining Sarahs. "Secret plan?" said Andy. "So Dan wasn't just being paranoid."

An artist has used various types of food to create delightful portraits of famous people.

Jason Mecier, from San Francisco, used strips of bacon and rice to portray actor Kevin Bacon and former U.S. secretary of state Condoleezza Rice, respectively.

The choice of material provides a visual pun of their surnames. Mecier tries his best to preserve his food-based works, but so far it only works out for some.

Mecier's works feature in a new book, Wild Art, which celebrates non-traditional creativity like sand sculptures, extreme body art and miniature dioramas. METRO

Synopsis

Combatants and sweethearts Katniss Everdeen (Jennifer Lawrence) and Peeta Melark (Josh Hutcherson) have returned victorious from the 74th Annual Hunger Games. While on a Victory Tour to Panem's various downtrodden districts, revolution is in the air. The people see Katniss as a symbol of freedom, which, of course, doesn't sit well with President Snow (Donald Sutherland), the country's autocratic leader. To quell the revolution he and his head gamesmaker (Philip Seymour Hoffman) devise the trickiest Hunger Games yet, the Quarter Quell that will pit former winners against one another in the battle to the death.

The Hunger Games: Catching Fire is styled within an inch of its life, but it maintains a gritty edge. CONTRIBUTED

Two is better than one

Catching Fire. The followup to the Hunger Games is a step above the first instalment, with more visual and thematic grit

Richard: Mark, I'm glad I saw the first Hunger Games movie because I'm not sure if I would have a clue as to what was going on if I didn't have that background. I may have been taken in by the beautiful art direction, or Jennifer Lawrence's intense performance, but I don't think I would have been able to connect all the dots. Plot points become more obvious in the second hour, but for non-Hungerites it might be confusing. What did you think?

Mark: I don't think anyone who didn't see the first one would even be interested in seeing the second instalment. So the question becomes: how do they compare? And surprisingly, I kind of prefer the sequel. The issues of state control, of media manipulation, and of income disparity are sharper and less cartoonish here. But more important, the secondary characters are more interesting and better drawn. Some of the contestants are intriguing, like Jeffrey Wright's techno-nerd, and his partner Amanda Plummer, doing her nutso thing. I even liked Elizabeth Banks and Stanley Tucci this time around — the characters seemed more grounded in the story.

RC: I do think this is a better movie than the first instalment. It is set decorated and costumed to within an inch of its life, but nonetheless has a gritty edge. It doesn't feel like a budget big franchise movie and that's a good thing. Visually as well as thematically it has more edge than any of the recent Marvel movies. And it skirts around the thing that upset many people about the first movie — the idea of kids killing kids — by setting the action between former victors ranging in age from in their 20s to in their 70s.

MB: You know what else it skirts around? The killings themselves, many of which happen off-screen, to protect the delicate psyches of our tweener population. But that's OK; this isn't really a film about body count. The only thing that left me queasy was the cliffhanger ending, with a plot twist that will seem arbitrary until we catch the next instalment.

RC: The cliffhanger ending is a bit of a shock after the almost two-and-a-half hour running time, but I felt as though enough had happened to keep me interested for the next one.

MB: And I think the next one may show Woody Harrelson to be the trilogy's most valuable player.

Walt Disney. Looking back at a 90-year legacy for inspiration for the future

An “everything old is new again” theme emerges when looking at the slate of upcoming Disney films.

A titan in Hollywood and one of the largest media conglomerates in the world, the Mouse House is looking back at their rich history in a very interesting way. For instance, Get a Horse, the dazzling new short that plays before Frozen in theatres, is the first original Mickey Mouse theatrical cartoon in almost two decades.

But more than simply being a reintroduction to a beloved character, it's also a deft marriage of old and new techniques that features, through some technical wizardry, the first vocal performance from Walt Disney since the 1960s.

In the live action roster there's the Oscar hopeful Saving Mr. Banks, the story of the making of the classic Mary Poppins, and Tomorrowland, an epic sci-fi saga that was allegedly inspired by the contents of a mysterious box found in the Disney archives.

The 90-year-old company has one eye on the past and the other very much on the future.

“We like to think of our legacy as a springboard to the future and not something that anchors us so you can't move your feet,” says Walt Disney Animation Studios general manager and executive vice-president Andrew Millstein.

“There is a great wealth of characters and visual material, but in its day the best of Disney was innovative and moved with audiences. We should do the same.”

So what should audiences anticipate from Disney in the next few years? Millstein says audiences should, “expect the unexpected.”

“We have to be fiercely original. We have to give audiences things they haven't seen before. We want to surprise audiences. We want our stories to be compelling, the worlds to be great, the technology and the visuals to be stunning. If we do our jobs well, that is what's going to happen.”

Millstein knows what he's talking about. He's been with Disney since 1997, when he started there as a production executive in the studio's motion pictures group. “It makes me feel very proud that I am part of a company that is creating content and films that you know are going to live for a long, long time,” he says. “We're part of the zeitgeist of modern history.”

Coogan on ratings and writing the truth

Philomena. Actor talks about journalism and his MPAA struggles

NED

Metro World News in Hollywood

Steve Coogan has been enjoying near-universal positive reception for Philomena, the true-life tale he co-wrote, produced and stars in with Judi Dench about a woman trying to track down the baby a group of nuns forced her to give up as a teen. But that adulation train hit a snag in the U.S., where the film was initially given an R-rating by the MPAA for two instances of the F-word. We spoke with Coogan just hours after that decision was reversed.

Congratulations on your MPAA victory.

They reversed their decision after we appealed, and I was there as a producer of the film putting the case for reappraising the rating. It was myself and Bert Fields — he's one of the hottest Hollywood lawyers. ... They listened to our arguments and we convinced a two-thirds majority, which is what's required amongst the panel of people who can challenge the original rating.

Has your opinion of journalists changed at all after playing one in this?

My opinion of journalists was never bad. That's a myth put about by some journalists trying to undermine me, and it's kind of a part of a campaign by certain journalists who have an agenda to be reductive about the whole thing and make it that I don't. When actually in fact I love journalists. I admire journalists who plow through a lot of crap to get to the truth. But there are some journalists who are not really interested in the truth. They're just interested in shifting units and getting a pat on the back from their editors who just want to sell units to satisfy proprietors who want to satisfy shareholders, and it's not really anything to do with getting to the truth. Those are the people that I've got an issue with. People who have no ethics, basically.

So, cynics?

I think a lot of people end up being cynical, whereas in their heart they don't want to be cynical but they just wind up being cynical because they've been doing it so long and they're kind of battle-weary, I suppose. So I wanted Martin to have a humanity about him and have his cynicism challenged by this very ordinary — in some ways extraordinary but in other ways quite ordinary — old lady.

I was curious, at this point in your career, how often do people ask you to do impressions and how annoying do you find that? People actually stopped asking me about it for years because I stopped doing them about 20 years ago because I didn't like doing them. I started out doing stand-up comedy, where I did lots of impersonations, 25 years ago. But then I moved away from it and then it became that people didn't know I did them. Then I'd start saying, “Hey, I can do some impersonations...” It became a party trick. I much prefer it as a party trick rather than as a career. I mean, I know Kevin Spacey does lots of impersonations but people don't think, “Oh, Kevin Spacey, the famous impressionist.” (laughs)

He does a great Jack Lemmon.

You know what? I don't do a bad Jack Lemmon. I'll have to hear his and try mine.

Frozen thaws the battle of the sexes

Frozen opens next Friday. CONTRIBUTED

Female perspective. Male and female co-directors ensured Disney film didn't tread into stereotypes

scene@metronews.ca

The new animated film Frozen features something unique — dueling Disney princesses.

"I think what was really important for this movie was to have the female perspective," says co-director Chris Buck.

"We have two female leads and there are times that as a male director you can go to the stereotype of what a female character might do."

That's where co-director and writer Jennifer Lee came in. "Jen would always take it to a different place," he says. "She would say, 'Make her real. Make her believable.' So I think that really helped. It was a good balance."

Based on a Danish fairy tale by Hans Christian Andersen, Frozen is the story of two royal sisters, Anna, a spirited adventurer (Kristen Bell) and Elsa, a queen (Idina Menzel) with the awesome power to create ice and snow. Sibling is pitted against sibling when Elsa plunges her kingdom into an endless winter and Anna must act to save her sister and the empire. "You want to make these movies to last forever but we have to bring ourselves to it," says Buck. "We have to bring today's sense of entertainment and character to our characters."

"We're huge Disney fans and I grew up with Disney," says Lee. "When you watch a Disney film you are constantly feeling it. It is a combination of comedy and drama but it is together in such a way that you feel you are in the world. That is something we both love more than anything because that, to me, is what makes them timeless and resonate. You feel the character and you feel the stakes. You relate to them. I think Disney does that better than anyone."

Buck says that one of the big challenges in making Frozen was creating a movie for not "just the Disney family but also for the general audience, for everyone of all ages."

"I feel more than anything, a responsibility not to necessarily the company but to the audience," says Buck. "To the audience who comes in expecting a Disney movie and giving them the best of that. What does that mean to them? It's humour and emotion and beauty and all of that. For me, that's the pressure."

"I was speaking to a live action director who does more movies in the PG-13 and R-rated realm and he said, 'What you guys do is the hardest thing in the world because you try and reach everyone.'"

Vince Vaughn stars in this almost shot-for-shot remake of the French Canadian film Starbuck as a man-child who learns commitment and responsibility after discovering his sperm bank donations unwittingly made him the father of 533 children, 142 of whom have filed a class action lawsuit to learn their biological father's real identity. Supporting actors Chris Pratt, Cobie Smulders and Bobby Moynihan are all solid, but it's Vaughn who carries the movie. Daniel Radcliffe clearly sheds his Harry Potter cloak by portraying Allen Ginsberg in this true-life story set in the early lives of the beat generation poets. After meeting a rebellious student (rising star Dane DeHaan), Ginsberg is unwittingly dragged into an act of murder that helps shape his life. For fans of the mid-century counterculture movement, Darlings will be warmly welcomed but an undistinguished script deflates the dark mythology and its promising cast's performances. STEVE GOW

Fandom makes people do weird things. In Austenland, Jane Hayes (Keri Russell) blows her savings on a Jane Austen "experience" run by Jane Seymour in a bid to meet her own Mr. Darcy. Predictably, things don't pan out and Jane finds herself caught in a modern Pride and Prejudice situation, held back by her social status and falling for the wrong guy. It's a clever setup, but writer-director Jerusha Hess can't seem to break out of the rote romantic-comedy box. Worse, the jokes fail to yield any laughs. IAN GORMEY

The Clash are calling again on a Sound System near you

Q&A. Two of the band's surviving members Mick Jones and Paul Simonon talk about Strummer, the what ifs

Ah, the boom box. The portable stereo brings back memories of a specific time in music, when some of the sounds blaring from the speakers included the stew of punk rock, reggae and early hip-hop cooked up by the Clash.

Bass player Paul Simonon designed the group's new box set to look like a boom box. Lift up the cover and you'll find the complete recorded output of the classic Clash lineup — the late Joe Strummer, Mick Jones, Simonon and Topper Headon — with outtakes, videos, fanzines, stickers, a poster and more. The survivors worked a few years to get back control of their music, remaster it and restore the original artwork.

The Clash were leaders of London's punk rock class of 1977, made one of rock's most enduring albums in London Calling and soaked up the sounds of the street in hits like Train in Vain and Rock the Casbah. Jones and Headon were fired in 1982 and although replacements were added and another album, Cut the Crap, released in 1985, that final chapter is ignored in the Sound System box.

The balding Jones now looks like a kindly British professor as he sits down to talk about the project. Simonon, who always looked better than he played, is impeccably tailored.

Paul Simonon marking the release Sound System in London INVISION/AP

They confide a few myth-puncturing details in an interview with The Associated Press earlier this fall: "The Only Band That Matters" declaration was record company hype that they detested, and the band poked fun at their political crusader image in the song Know Your Rights — only people took them too seriously to notice.

Before the Clash, Jones went to art school, not to learn how to draw, but to meet other musicians. He took a grant given to buy art supplies and bought an amp instead. It proved to be a good investment.

Were the Clash destined to burn bright and burn out fast?

Simonon: We didn't know it at the time, but I guess so. When we first started, I was surprised that we got through the end of the week, really.

Jones: Nothing was guaranteed. I knew that we worked really hard, nearly every day.

Is it a regret that you ended when you did?

Simonon: We were starting to lose track with Earth because fame and success brings you many things that you're not really prepared for or know how to deal with as a human being. When it does happen, it's very easy to get swallowed up and be taken along with it and become a casualty or lose touch with reality. The fact that we fell apart when we did, sacking everybody, in some ways stopped those potential problems.

Did you make your peace with Joe Strummer before he died (in 2002)?

Jones: It was well before he died. It was just a few months after I left the group that we became friends again.

Simonon: We appeared in Mick's B.A.D. video for Medicine Show, just to show outwardly that we were friends again.

If he had lived, do you think the Clash would have gotten back together?

Jones: We had opportunities. That's it, really. It didn't happen. It never seemed right.

Why?

Jones: We didn't want to do it.

Simonon: It's a better story at the end of the day that we didn't get back together. We saved all that time and effort by not reforming. It seems like we would have squandered what we'd achieved by reforming. Why do people get together? Why do bands reform? Oh, they're good mates. Well, that's nice. It's usually because of a financial situation that has to be adhered to. Basically, everyone's broke.

Jones: Our band is an idea as well. It kind of said, "You can do this." We can say all this now in retrospect and sort of understand it. When we did it, we just did it instinctively with no thought of future significance.

Does the world need a band like the Clash today?

Jones: There's not much going on, is there?

Two Hours Traffic. If there was a fat lady, she'd be singing right now

Members of the Prince Edward Island band Two Hours Traffic. CONTRIBUTED

When Charlottetown power-pop outfit Two Hours Traffic recently announced their imminent breakup and farewell tour, the members pledged in a statement that the split had nothing to do with internal dysfunction or creative malaise.

Which left fans wondering why, exactly, they were breaking up then, with the two most obvious reasons ruled out? Well, frontman Liam Corcoran says that despite a decade-plus career that has yielded some success — a Polaris Prize nomination, a devoted following and a horde of East Coast Music Award nominations, including one win — the band's four members still couldn't support themselves financially through music.

"Despite the successes we had, it still isn't something we can rely on to pay the bills," said Corcoran. "So we're still coming home and scrambling to get everything else done. There's a lot of honour in that but after 12 years we decided we'd done what we could and it was time to move on."

Indeed, Corcoran and guitarist Andrew MacDonald worked at a local clothing store when they were off tour. Eventually, drummer Derek Ellis decided that he wanted to pursue a master's degree at Western University in London, Ont.

To continue would have likely meant replacing him, which — after the 2011 departure of founding guitarist Alec O'Hanley — would have left Two Hours Traffic with only two original members.

"We started to feel it wasn't the band it used to be and if we continued to play under the name Two Hours Traffic, it'd be kind of dishonest," Corcoran explained. Looking back, Corcoran is intensely proud of the band's output.

After 2005's self-titled debut earned some attention, 2007's Little Jabs brought Two Hours Traffic perhaps their greatest success. The Polaris-nominated disc further established the band's gift for hook-laden power pop, merging the legacy of such acclaimed tunesmiths as Marshall Crenshaw and Nick Lowe with the modern, lean production redolent of the first Strokes album.

That gift for melody never left, not on the slightly moodier 2009 disc Territory or what will likely stand as the group's swan song, 2012's Foolish Blood, a record that found the group exploring more spacious production and a wider palette of sounds. In Corcoran's opinion, it's the band's best work.

His next priority is the band's farewell tour, which will begin Dec. 12 at Toronto's Lee's Palace and ultimately finish with a pair of shows in Charlottetown Dec. 21 and 22.

Let Me Off at the Top! My Classy Life & Other Musings, by Ron Burgundy

You don't have to wait until the release of Anchorman: The Legend Continues to hear some of Ron Burgundy's wise words. The anchorman, played by Will Ferrell, is releasing a classy new book and while it doesn't smell of rich mahogany, it includes plenty of personal anecdotes. From dispelling myths about his hair to his secret to musings about the women he's loved, Burgundy's short stories are personal and detailed. Sometimes too detailed.

Lady Catherine, the Earl, and the Real Downton Abbey, by the Countess of Carnarvon

Downton Abbey fans will devour this new true story, written by the Countess, whose first book inspired the show. After her last book spent nearly a year on the New York Times best seller list, the royal author is back with another page-turner full of royal scandal and affairs. In the book, a divorced Lady Catherine faces the heartache of war when her husband, ex-husband and son all join the military.

The Ministry of Guidance Invites You to Not Stay: An American Family in Iran, by Hooman Majd

Moving from Greenpoint, Brooklyn to Iran proves to be quite the culture shock in this true story, written by Iranian-American journalist Hooman Majd. Majd's wife is from the Midwest and doesn't blend in so easily — even when wearing a head scarf. The challenges they face range from trivial (hunting for booze) to serious (it's 2011 and US-Iran relations are not exactly friendly) and make this book as entertaining as it is heart-warming.

Canadian rock band Arcade Fire is getting heat for instituting a dress code for its upcoming North American arena tour.

On the Ticketmaster pages hawking seats for the Montreal group's upcoming tour, a note at the top of the page reads: "Please wear formal attire or costume."

The tour begins March 6 in Louisville and stops in Toronto, Ottawa, Edmonton, Calgary and Winnipeg before wrapping in Montreal on Aug. 30.

The band had made similar sartorial demands before a show in Montreal in September and in London earlier this month, when NME reported that frontman Win Butler told the crowd: "To anyone who felt uncomfortable dressing up — I'm not sorry."

The demand is garnering some backlash, with online cultural magazine Slate writing that the move is "presumptuous" and "an attempt to reinforce the band's status as capital-A Artists."

Arcade Fire topped charts in Canada and the U.S. with its double-disc opus Reflektor, released in October.

Their previous album, The Suburbs, also debuted at No. 1 before winning album of the year honours at the Grammys and Juno Awards.

CBC's winter lineup heavy on familiar fare

Television. Schedule includes 1,500 hours of Sochi Games coverage

The CBC's winter lineup is heavy on coverage of the upcoming Winter Games and returning series.

The public broadcaster outlined its upcoming schedule Wednesday, touting mostly familiar fare including Murdoch Mysteries, Dragons' Den, Republic of Doyle, Heartland and The Rick Mercer Report.

It's no surprise the February schedule is dominated by coverage of the Sochi 2014 Olympics, with CBC promising more than 1,500 broadcast hours in both English and French.

New additions to the grid include the political satire The Best Laid Plans, the reality series Four Rooms and the culinary competition Recipe to Riches, which used to air on the Food Network.

In addition to the weekly Saturday night battles on Hockey Night in Canada, CBC will have the 2014 Bridgestone NHL Winter Classic on Jan. 1, back-to-back games from the 2014 Coors Light Stadium Series on Jan. 25 and 26, and the 2014 Tim Hortons Heritage Classic on March 2. Scotiabank Hockey Day in Canada goes live from Lloydminster, Alta./Sask., on Jan. 18.

That's in addition to a partnership with the NHL, NHLPA and NBC to broadcast the seven-part series, NHL Revealed: A Season Like No Other. It starts Jan. 23, a day after it begins south of the border on NBC Sports Network.

The six-part miniseries The Best Laid Plans, based on author Terry Fallis' award-winning novel, focuses on an Ottawa speech writer who decides to leave the Hill for academia, but is tasked with

Canadians star in Bob Dylan's new music video

Like a Rolling Stone.

CMT Canada host Paul McGuire and the Property Brothers make an appearance in the unique approach to an old song

A few Canadians feature prominently in Bob Dylan's new interactive music video for Like a Rolling Stone, which premiered online Tuesday.

Identical twins Drew and Jonathan Scott, better known as the stars of the W Network show Property Brothers, and CMT Canada host Paul McGuire appear on two of the 16 virtual TV channels that users can flip through while Dylan's song plays.

On each channel, the characters on screen lip sync the lyrics to Like a Rolling Stone. The shows on the channels include specially shot versions of Pawn Stars, The Price is Right, Property Brothers, a parody of The Bachelor, faux news shows and a tennis match.

McGuire plays a TV anchor for a business news network, while the Scott brothers were told to mimic their show as much as possible for the music video.

Morrissey

Morrissey takes aim at Pippa

Morrissey is not pleased with Pippa Middleton's recent hunting trip, to put it mildly. The singer and animal rights activist let off a lengthy blog post going after several high-profile hunters, taking aim specifically at the Middletons.

"On Oct. 5, the Daily Mail newspaper gave us all an 'amusing' report of thick-wit Pippa Middleton laughing as she stood over 50 birds shot dead by her friends and herself after a 'busy day's shooting,'" he writes. "The sick face of modern Britain, Pippa Middleton will kill deer, boar, birds — any animal struggling to live or that gets in her socialite way.

"This is because her sister is, of course, Kate, who herself became 'royal' simply by answering the telephone at the right time, and this association allows Pippa's 'kill, kill, kill' mentality to be smilingly endorsed by the British print media, to which only the mentally deficient could join in with the laughter."

Dan's advice for celebs? Stop sharing

Daniel Radcliffe has some simple advice for celebrities who are tired of having their privacy invaded: Stop sharing so much. "I don't have Twitter and I don't have Facebook and I think that makes things a lot easier," he tells Sky News. "Because if you go on Twitter and tell everybody what you're doing moment to moment and then claim you want a private life, then no one is going to take that request seriously."

Metro World News in New York City

This is hilarious. Check out Will Smith trying really, really hard not to put his arm around Margot Robbie in this photo call for their new film Focus in Buenos Aires, Argentina on Wednesday.

It makes sense. After all, the two co-stars were the subject of intense media speculation last month after they reportedly had a steamy romp in a photo booth at a party. "Once they pulled the curtain back to take the pictures, they let their inhibitions run wild, laughing, hugging and nuzzling each other in the dark," a source told Star.

So now Smith, the professional he is, knows if any other forthcoming gossip about his marriage or his "nuzzling" come to light, media outlets will use any photo they can find of Robbie and him together. Smart man.

Are Harry and Kendall a thing? Don't expect him to deny it Harry Styles is prompting new dating rumours after being spotted taking Kendall Jenner to dinner in L.A. Wednesday night, according to Us Weekly. Styles drove them to dinner at Craig's restaurant in West Hollywood, Jenner seated beside him in his SUV.

While it's not clear if Styles is actually dating the 18-year-old, he has made his feelings on high-profile relationships known. "I don't want to be one of those people that complains about the rumours," he recently told the British edition of GQ magazine.

"I never like it when a celebrity goes on Twitter and says, 'This isn't true!' It is what it is. The only time it gets really annoying is that if you get into a relationship and you get into a place where you really like someone and then things are being written in the papers that affect them and how they see you. Then it can get annoying."

Chris Brown kicked out of anger management for throwing a rock

Chris Brown has been thrown out of his Malibu rehab facility after he "flew into a violent rage" and threw a rock through his mother's car window following a family therapy session, according to TMZ.

The troubled R&B star has now been sentenced to 90 days in a different live-in anger management facility. Brown, who was most recently arrested for a brawl outside a Washington, D.C., hotel, was at the first facility for two weeks before the incident. The judge overseeing the case did not decide to revoke his probation.

Aaron Carter

The party's over: Aaron Carter is bankrupt

Uh-oh. Aaron Carter joins Toni Braxton, Teresa Giudice, MC Hammer, Kim Basinger and other fallen stars who have filed for bankruptcy. In legal docs acquired by TMZ, the former teen star lists his assets as $8,232.16 US. Which isn't going to come close to his liabilities, which total $2,204,854, with $1,368,140 owed to the IRS. And this factoid may make you feel better about your paycheque: Aaron lists his average monthly income at $1,998.75. So, hey! You might not be able to ever retire, but neither will Aaron Carter.

Add a cheesy side of Canadiana to dinner

Garlic Cheddar Biscuits. This delicious side dish is made with Canadian cheese. Which one? The choice is all yours

For a twist, substitute drained chopped pickled Jalapenos or chives for the green onion.

1. Preheat the oven to 450 F (230 C). Line a large baking sheet with parchment paper.

2. In a large bowl combine the flour, baking powder, cream of tartar, sugar and salt. Using a pastry blender or two knives, cut in butter until crumbly. Stir in cheese and green onions. Slowly add the milk, stirring with a fork, until the batter reaches a soft dough consistency.

3. On a lightly floured surface, knead dough gently 3 to 4 times until it holds together. Roll out to 3/4-inch (2 cm) thickness. Cut into squares. Place at least 2 inches (5 cm) apart on prepared baking sheet.

4. Topping: In a small bowl, combine melted butter and garlic powder; brush biscuits with half of the mixture.

5. Bake 12 mins. or until starting to brown. Brush with remaining butter mix. Bake an additional 3 mins. or until golden brown. Best served warm.

Even with most wine aficionados plugging into the Internet for the bulk of their liquid knowledge, there's still a place in this world for some hard copy.

Just in time for Christmas, the newly released Canadian Wineries (Firefly Books, $29.95) by Tony Aspler, with photographs by Jean-François Bergeron, is the book Canadian wine fans have been waiting for.

Focusing on more than 60 wineries — from British Columbia's Mission Hill all the way to Nova Scotia's Jost Vineyards — it's a lovingly crafted collection of stories and images that will make even the most jaded sommelier excited to visit these vineyards and drink their wines.

B.C.'s Sandhill Estate is included in the collection and its 2011 Cabernet Merlot ($17.49 to $21.99) is available just about everywhere. Dark, rich and layered with varietal fruit, it's a mouthful of local juice that pairs perfectly with meatier, winter-inspired menus.

The engine driving our vibrant national wine culture is our own wines, and if you're looking for a great guide to the excitement, Canadian Wineries is it. PRICES REFLECT THE RANGE ACROSS THE COUNTRY. SOME PRODUCTS MAY NOT BE AVAILABLE IN ALL PROVINCES.

Terrific teen ideas

MIKE YAWNEY
For Metro

If you have a teenager, you know how difficult it can be to purchase a gift for them. Forget the gift cards and guessing which style of jeans they want. These high-tech gifts are sure to please even the pickiest teen.

Playstation 4 — $399.99

One of the most highly anticipated new consoles of the year. The PS4 features improved processing and graphical power with voice control. A new controller features a touchpad and “share” button, which lets you record and share gameplay with friends online.

Xbox One — $499.99

Microsoft's next generation console promises to wow gamers of all ages. Every aspect of this next-gen console has been enhanced, including a vastly improved Kinect sensor and a newly designed controller with more than 40 new technological innovations.

Sony Xperia Z1 — $700 (no contract)

Snappy performance and stylish good looks, this is a smartphone your teen will want to show off. The rear 20.7-megapixel camera will help them capture moments with friends, while the water-proof and dust-resistant body will hold up to most teens.

Samsung Galaxy S4 Mini — $449.99 (no contract)

Compact and yet powerful. This smaller version of Samsung's popular Galaxy S4 has many of the same features but now in a smaller form. A solid plastic build ensures durability, while the eight-megapixel camera is perfect for snapping selfies and Facebook pics.

Mophie Juice Pack Helium — $79.95

Your teen will never be able to use the excuse “my phone's battery died” again once you buy them this case for their iPhone. This case contains an external battery providing up to an additional 80 per cent battery life, yet it's thin and light. Available in multiple colours.

Sonos Play:1 — $219

If your teen loves music then look no further. Once they connect Play:1 to their home network and download the app, they can stream music from the most popular music services directly to the speakers. Purchase additional speakers for an even richer music experience.

Pebble — $150

So much more than just a watch. Pebble connects to your smartphone via Bluetooth so you receive notifications each time you receive an email or text. Download apps to give your watch even more functionality. Teens can also personalize Pebble by choosing one of hundreds of customizable faces or swapping out the wrist strap.

Philips Friends of Hue Bloom Lamp — $79.95

The perfect way to let your teen customize the look of their room without spending a fortune. This lamp is designed to cast coloured light on walls, using an app designed for your iPod, iPhone, or iPad. More than 16 million colours are possible and it doesn't get hot. Requires Philips Hue Bridge accessory.

iPad Mini 2nd Gen — $419 and up

The all-new iPad Mini finally receives the beautiful Retina display. Internal specs also feature a dramatic improvement with faster processor and improved graphical power. Ideal for learning and leisure.

HTC One Mini — $399.99

This pocket-friendly device has the features teenagers demand in a smartphone. Crisp, 4.3-inch high-definition display, amazing audio through two front-facing speakers, a fantastic camera, plus all your social media streams to the main screen. What more could a teen want.

Don't let the eggnog derail your career path

Office holiday parties.

Be on your best behaviour when you gather with co-workers

JANE
For Metro

Ah, the annual office holiday party. Perhaps people have been on their best behaviour at the parties you have attended, but things can go south quickly, especially if alcohol flows freely.

If that happens this year — if you want to keep your career on the fast track — it's wise to keep your inhibitions in check.

"Employers are responsible for the safety of their employees, even at an office party, and they have a legal obligation to take appropriate disciplinary action against anyone who goes overboard in terms of sexual harassment, insubordination or discrimination," said Susan Thompson-Graham,

It's wise to keep your inhibitions in check at the annual holiday party if you want to keep your career on the fast track. PRESSMASTER/SHUTTERSTOCK the head instructor of the advanced diploma program in human resource management at the Nova Scotia Community College in Halifax.

Here are Thompson-Graham's tips for how to not ruin your career at the party:

- Don't skip the shindig. You may not want to go, but it's one night of the whole year, and if you don't attend, you could be ostracized at work for a while.

- Drink responsibly. Let management set the pace for how much alcohol is consumed. If everyone overindulges, ensure that you also consume vast quantities of water and food. "You don't want to be the office hangover joke the next day," Thompson-Graham said. "And do I even need to say it? No illegal drugs."

- Dress appropriately. "It's not Halloween, so no sexy pirate, sexy nurse or sexy devil outfits," Thompson-Graham said.

- Keep romance at bay. Although many people do meet their significant other at work, don't make out on the dance floor under the glare of the disco ball. "Instead, make arrangements for a rendezvous after the party," Thompson-Graham said.

- Observe social media etiquette. That means no texting — you need to look like you want to be there. And no posting "memorable moments" from the party on Facebook or Instagram, especially if your company has a social media policy.

- Express your gratitude. Thank the host and organizers for their hard work. "I often hear managers say, 'I do this for my employees and don't get a single thank you.' Be remembered for being the one who took the time to do so," Thompson-Graham said.

Tradition. Gather the family for story time

Most families have a Christmas tradition or two that they look forward to sharing together year after year.

Traditions draw us closer together and allow us to slow down and enjoy the season.

Reading Christmas short stories together is free, meaningful and gives a slight pause to each day of the hustle and bustle that comes with the holiday season.

Begin on Dec. 1 and read a story each night until Christmas. You may want to plan ahead by having each family member choose a favourite holiday story.

You can borrow some from your local library, download them or listen to audio stories.

Make story time special by lighting some candles, or gathering the family around the Christmas tree. Make some apple cider or hot chocolate and have a small treat like cookies or shortbread to go with your hot drink.

You will be surprised at how much your family will look forward to this quiet time with each other.

Riders' Bagg refuses to let his spirits sag

Grey Cup. After overcoming numerous injuries, receiver has shot at career-defining moment on Sunday

For a moment, it looked like Rob Bagg's dream of winning the CFL's biggest prize was finally over.

In an Aug. 17 game against the Montreal Alouettes, the Saskatchewan Roughriders wide receiver went out on a blocking assignment and went down in a heap, clutching his left knee.

Bagg left the field in tears, seeming to signal the end of a CFL career that barely managed to get started.

But two days later video emerged of Bagg running the stairs at Mosaic Stadium, and not even two weeks after that he was back in the lineup for the Labour Day Classic, making one catch for seven yards as the Riders downed the Winnipeg Blue Bombers.

Bagg finished the 2013 regular season fifth on the Riders with 430 yards receiving, and will have the chance Sunday to help his team finish first when Saskatchewan hosts the Hamilton Tiger-Cats in the 101st Grey Cup at Mosaic Stadium.

"Getting back on the field is one thing but, really, your main driving factor is you want to be able to tell your kids and grandkids that you were the best in the CFL one year," he said.

Bagg will be in uniform Sunday for his first championship game since 2009, when Saskatchewan lost to Montreal

Roughriders receiver Rob Bagg, celebrates his touchdown during the first half of the CFL West Division final against the Stampeders in Calgary last Sunday. Peer evaluation

"I don't really know what keeps him going at times."

Roughriders receiver Weston Dressler, on teammate Rob Bagg

after a too-many-men penalty cost them the game with no time on the clock.

For Bagg, that loss was compounded further by the broken collarbone he suffered following a hit from Chip Cox late in the fourth quarter.

"I was definitely aware of the situation and, if anything, it made the injury more painful because it was just two defeats rather than one," said Bagg.

"But I never really think about that injury. I think about the opportunity that we screwed up."

His first shot at redemption was derailed late in the 2010 season when he tore the ACL in his right knee, causing him to miss the Riders' playoff drive and loss in the Grey Cup rematch with Montreal.

Bagg missed all of 2011 after reinjuring the ligament prior to the next season's training camp and played only three games in 2012 before tearing up his other knee, which also required season-ending surgery.

"He's definitely worked harder than anyone I've ever met in this sport," said fellow Riders receiver Weston Dressler.

"He's put in the time, he's put in effort to get himself back on the field on separate occasions, many different times. So just to see him out there and get a chance to play in this game again, it's nice to see that." THE CANADIAN PRESS

Grey Cup

Frostbitten Ticats had 'great time' out in the snow

Several Tiger-Cats emerged from their first Grey Cup practice with frostbite from frigid Mosaic Stadium in Regina.

But Paul Osbaldiston, Hamilton's assistant special teams and kicking coach, said the team still relished the championship game workout.

"I loved playing in the snow," the former longtime Hamilton kicker said Thursday at a media breakfast. "I saw it as something different and fun and a challenge. Our guys had a great time out there (Wednesday). We ended up with a couple of frostbite situations. But the guys didn't complain, they practised hard."

Osbaldiston said the frostbite was nothing serious "but it tells you how cold it is."

Wednesday's temperature was listed at minus-16 but it felt like minus-28. It was even chillier Thursday morning at minus-21, which felt like minus-31. The forecast is improved for game-day Sunday with a daytime high of zero, feeling like minus-five. Kickoff is 5:30 p.m. local time.

Two shades of Grey unite on Sunday

Saskatchewan Roughriders fans celebrate winning the CFL West final over the Stampeders in Calgary on Nov. 17. Sunday's Grey Cup will mark only the third time Regina has hosted the event. LARRY MACDOUGAL/THE CANADIAN PRESS

DAVE LANGFORD
Metro in London, Ont.

When it comes to professional football in this country, there really are only two shades of grey.

As in Grey Cup.

First, the segment of our population with the absolute love of the Canadian game at all levels. For them, the CFL is almost a way of life. These people are most plentiful in three provinces — Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta — and exist in various regional pockets across the rest of our country.

This group loves three-down football, all things Canadian, movement in the backfield and someone actually gaining points when they miss 30-yard field goals.

The second group is not as obvious, but every bit as strong in their beliefs about the way football should be played. They are NFL fans and they are all across the country, dominating in some provinces and constituting no less than 50 per cent of football enthusiasts in many others.

Red, white and Grey

The pro-CFL and pro-NFL camps co-exist on Grey Cup Sunday for obvious reasons — both love football, both love Canada and there is nothing more Canadian than the Grey Cup.

Four-down football is their cup of Red Rose tea, and betting on the game is part of their persona. They like the fact the best athletes are playing their game, and relish the absolute television and online saturation, which allows them many more entry points.

But there is one day when both sides unite and become one — a special Sunday each year in late November. The confluence of the two streams on Grey Cup Sunday is a beautiful thing.

And this year more than the rest.

That is because the two smallest markets — Hamilton, represented by the Ticats, and Regina, by the Roughriders — are facing each other for the first time since 1989. And the game is in Regina, only the third time the city has played host to the event.

The pro-CFL and pro-NFL camps co-exist on Grey Cup Sunday for obvious reasons — both love football, both love Canada and there is nothing more Canadian than the Grey Cup.

But a Grey Cup in Regina is not the Grey Cup in the Rogers Centre in Toronto or the Olympic Stadium in Montreal or BC Place in Vancouver.

It is far superior, something very special.

It is an outdoor spectacle played in Canada's version of the "frozen tundra" where the elements will be in play all day and the fans would not have it any other way.

No matter how many downs are in play.

Green gifts

Riders have perch all their own when it comes to merchandise

Long underwear in green, rubber ducks with tiny green football helmets painted on them and a foam helmet that looks like a watermelon.

There is apparently no end to the list of things bearing a Saskatchewan Roughriders logo, and football fans flocking to Regina for the 101st Grey Cup on Sunday can't wait to get their hands on the merchandise.

Riders vice-president of sales Steve Mazurak says Saskatchewan sells as much merchandise as all the other CFL teams combined.

The Riders have had more than $7 million in merchandise sales in each of the last four years, with sales in the 2010 centennial year reaching $10 million.

But Mazurak says it's too early to know if sales this year will pass that $10-million mark, adding that might depend on the outcome of the game Sunday.

Capitals coach still working on relationship with Ovechkin

NHL. After a rocky time under Dale Hunter, the Washington star has warmed to the approach of his new bench boss

Adam Oates earned Alex Ovechkin's respect right away. Oates reached out to Ovechkin after getting the job as coach of the Washington Capitals in June 2012, establishing a connection with the star captain that didn't exist under Dale Hunter. He capitalized on that by convincing Ovechkin to move to right wing last season, a switch that paved the way to Ovechkin winning the Hart Trophy as the league's most valuable player.

But Oates wasn't done cultivating a strong working relationship with his captain. Last summer, he flew to Russia to spend some time away from the rink and in Ovechkin's environment as a thank you for believing in the position change.

"I went there because he did something for the organization, for me and the staff, that he didn't have to do, in my opinion," Oates said Wednesday.

Ovechkin owes Oates for helping him reinvigorate his career after becoming somewhat stale and predictable. His goal production was still better than much of the league — 32 in 2010-11 and 38 in 2011-12 — but he wasn't the game-changing superstar who broke into the league and piled up the awards.

"He wants to know the guys," Ovechkin said. "He don't want to do only training and be at the ice rink and show us video. He want to know everything about us, about me personally. He met my family, as well, last year. It's good." THE CANADIAN PRESS

NHL. Preds Rookie Jones making push for Sochi

It didn't take long for Seth Jones to learn a hard lesson about playing defence in the NHL, courtesy of Detroit Red Wings star Pavel Datsyuk.

"Datsyuk put it through my legs and I almost fell and broke my ankles," Jones said. "That was kind of a welcome to the (NHL) moment."

In addition to providing the highly touted Nashville Predators rookie defenceman with a reality check, it also gave him a preview of the level of play the Olympics could provide. Even at 19 years old Jones is on the United States' radar for Sochi, something he's trying not to think about despite the fact his general manager, David Poile, is the man making the decision.

"I've been focused on the Nashville Predators and what I can do to help us win," Jones said Thursday afternoon. "First I had to make the team, and I did that. I'm still focused on the Predators right now, but if I get the opportunity to go over to Sochi it would be a huge honour and very exciting."

Jones was invited to U.S. Olympic orientation camp in August after being the No. 4 pick in the draft, and he is reportedly one of 12 defencemen being considered for eight spots.

the Preds — including a game-winner in Montreal — and six assists, and more importantly leads all rookies in ice time at 23:59 a game.

Nashville coach Barry Trotz figured Jones could be his No. 5 defenceman this season. More than 20 games in, Jones is a front-runner for the Calder Trophy.

"I always say the point-one-per-centers are going to play right away," Trotz said. "Seth came in and I didn't know exactly how well he would be able to translate to the National Hockey League.... He really has a lot of poise, a lot of maturity toward his game on and off the ice." THE CANADIAN PRESS

World Cup qualifying

Pro-Nazi chants lead to FIFA fine

Croatia's public prosecutors have fined defender Joe Simunic for pro-Nazi chants after the national team's World Cup qualification.

Croatia reached the World Cup with a 2-0 win over Iceland on Tuesday. Simunic took up a microphone on the field after the match and shouted to fans: "For the homeland!" The fans responded: "Ready!"

The call was used by the Croatian pro-Nazi puppet regime that ruled the state during World War II.

The prosecutor office fined Simunic $4,300 on Thursday for "spreading racial hatred." It said he was aware this was the call used by the WWII regime.

NFL. Wes Welker returns to practice

Wes Welker returned to practice Thursday for the first time since leaving Sunday's game against Kansas City with a concussion.

Also back in action was tight end Julius Thomas (right knee). Both were limited as the Broncos (9-1) practiced in snowy, -6 C weather, which interim head coach Jack Del Rio called a "blessing" as his team prepares for Sunday's game at chilly New England (7-3).

Welker, who passed his baseline concussion test earlier in the week, wasn't allowed any contact work. He'll get to do that Friday if all goes well.

He said he's hopeful he'll be able to play against his former team.

"I want to be out there," Welker said. "I mean, there are not too many games I've missed in my whole career and I love playing the game, especially in big atmospheres like this. So, I'm doing everything possible in my power to make sure that I get the opportunity to play in a game like this." THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Horoscopes

Aries

March 21 - April 20

As the Sun moves into your fellow Fire sign of Sagittarius today, your confidence will come flooding back and you will wonder why you doubted yourself. If you like the idea of travelling, now is the time to pack a bag and just go.

Taurus

April 21 - May 21

Money matters will be on your mind over the next few days and you must do whatever it takes to make sure your cash stays in your pocket. Don't let anyone fool you into believing you can get rich quick.

Gemini

May 22 - June 21

You like to get your way and most of the time you do but today, let the other guy win. You will need other people's co-operation over the next few weeks to get what you need, so give them what they need too.

Cancer

June 22 - July 23

Slow down before you burn yourself out. That is the message of the planets today and if you are wise you'll heed it. Not even a go-getting Cancer can keep up this pace forever.

Leo

July 24 - Aug. 23

You may want to get back at people who have let you down but is it worth the effort? No it is not. Within a matter of hours you will have more important things to take care of. Let it go.

Virgo

Aug. 24 - Sept. 23

Loved ones will be touchy today, so don't say or do anything that might make them even more angry. If you poke, they'll poke back harder.

Libra

Sept. 24 - Oct. 23

A more light-hearted phase begins for you today as the Sun changes signs. Money, work and family worries won't disappear immediately but you won't have sleepless nights.

Scorpio

Oct. 24 - Nov. 22

The Sun leaves your birth sign today but you haven't missed your chance to make your mark. On the contrary, over the next few weeks you will get the chance to build on foundations that have been laid.

Sagittarius

Nov. 23 - Dec. 21

As the Sun moves into your birth sign today, you have every right to follow your heart. Life is too short to worry what other people think. Just do what comes naturally and enjoy every moment.

Capricorn

Dec. 22 - Jan. 20

There is so much that needs changing in your life but where do you start? The most obvious place is inside your head. Make clear what it is you most desire and how you can get it.

Aquarius

Jan. 21 - Feb. 19

You may be desperate to make a good impression on colleagues but you are more likely to do so if you take on just one task at a time. Focus on what really matters.

Pisces

Feb. 20 - March 20

The Sun crosses the career angle of your chart today. Among other things, that means you will get the chance to show what you can do. Know what you are aiming for.
